This principle states that a business is considered a separate entity from its owners or shareholders. All financial transactions are recorded from the perspective of the business entity, not the individual owners.

Key Points: Business and owner are distinct; Personal transactions of owners are not recorded in the business accounts.

Ensures: clarity and accountability
- The Going Concern Principle

Assumes that the business will continue to operate indefinitely unless there is evidence to the contrary.

Implications: Assets are recorded at cost, assuming they will be used in the future; Financial statements are prepared with the expectation of ongoing operations
- The Cost Principle

Assets should be recorded at their original purchase price, not their current market value.

Significance: Ensures objectivity and verifiability; Simplifies the recording process
- The Matching Principle

Revenues should be matched with the expenses incurred to generate them within the same accounting period.

Application: Recognize expenses when incurred; Recognize revenue when earned
- The Revenue Recognition Principle

Revenue is recognized when it is earned and realizable, regardless of when cash is received.

Details: Sale completion marks revenue recognition; Important for accurate profit measurement
- The Conservatism Principle

When in doubt, accountants should choose the solution that results in lower profits or asset values to avoid overstating financial health.

Purpose: Prevents overly optimistic financial reporting; Ensures stakeholders are not misled
- The Consistency Principle

Companies should apply the same accounting methods consistently across periods to enable comparability.

Benefits: Facilitates trend analysis; Enhances reliability of financial data
- The Materiality Principle

Financial information should be disclosed if its omission or misstatement could influence users' decisions.

Considerations: Materiality depends on the size and nature of the item; Ensures relevant information is reported⁹. The Objectivity Principle Financial reports should be based on objective evidence and free from personal bias. Examples: Use of invoices, receipts, and other verifiable documents Avoidance of subjective judgments Application of Principles in Financial Reporting Preparation of Financial Statements Applying the principles ensures that financial statements accurately reflect the company's financial situation. For example: Using the entity concept, transactions are recorded solely for the business. The going concern principle influences asset valuation and depreciation. The matching principle ensures expenses align with the revenue they generate. Ensuring Compliance with Accounting Standards The principles serve as the foundation for adherence to GAAP and International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS).
